WHAT DO WE DO?

CE Wales works with Government and decision-makers across the country to help them understand the value construction can deliver. We make the case for collaborative project delivery. We use our influence and knowledge to help shift the focus away from short-term gain towards long-term good. Everything we do is geared towards promoting best value, progressive waste strategies, low carbon, and community benefits.

The aim is to build a Wales that is fit for future generations, construction needs an objective champion to speak with a single united voice for the whole supply chain. That is the role of CEW. To ensure the industry works as a team. Hence our new commissioned services.

WE CONSULT, WE ADVISE AND WE DELIVER

One way that we seek to achieve these outcomes – all aligned with the goals and targets of the Wellbeing of Future Generations (WFG) Act – is through commissioned work. These commissions will supplement our membership income and enable us to be more active across our broad policy agenda.

CE Wales has undertaken a number of reviews of construction frameworks and provided enhanced visibility of the forward pipeline of work, particularly for local authority programmes. The former Exemplar programme, assessing projects and aimed at demonstrating excellence, now forms part of this commissioned work. The approach has also been updated to incorporate the goals and principles of the WFG Act and other policy areas and is available either on a project or programme basis.

We want to support Welsh construction with any challenges it faces that fall within the broad mission of improving 'best value' construction procurement and delivery. Right now, our work focusses on –

- Construction frameworks- review and/or support
- Pipeline – development of greater visibility
- Exemplar – projects or programmes
- WFG Act – development of FG project directory
- Industry-wide consultations
